ONE GOOD TERM DESERVES ANOTHER

The most casual observer among the citizens of Marion cannot but notice the vast difference in the moral atmosphere in Marion since Lewis Scherff took hold of the reins and began his term as the city's chief executive. From a wide open, free and easy, go-as-you-please city, Marion has been brought to as near a law abiding city as it is possible to make it under existing conditions and with the limited means at hand. Some criticism has been heaped upon Mayor Scherff's head because it was claimed that he did not fully accomplish all that he set out to do. But if these critics will reason for a moment they will see the hopelessness of endeavoring to protect the property and lives in a city of twenty thousand inhabitants and at the same time to clamp down the "lid" with only a hand full of officers on duty at night; time and a scant three on duty in day time. It matters not what fault may be found with Mayor Scherff and his administration, the charge cannot truthfully be made that he has been insincere. Council has been called upon repeatedly to increase the police force to a point which would insure better protection and permit of a closer watch being kept for violators of laws, but the appeal has fallen upon deaf ears, and Mayor Scherff has been compelled to plod along as best he could. Another point which cannot but appeal to every citizen is the great increase in revenue which has resulted from the mayor's policies. He has turned over into the city treasurer each month a very handsome sum from fines and licenses, a sum vastly in excess of his salary. This was a very rare occurrence prior to Mayor Scherff's time in office. The police court has come to be a reality in Marion. Instead of men being arrested and allowed to sober up in the city prison and then turned loose only to repeat the offense, these men have been made to pay for their folly, have been made to pay for their folly, a term, have been ordered out of the city or given a suspended sentence, to be executed when the next offense was committed. The city prison is no longer a free lodging house for tramps and a place where drunken men may be taken to sober up. To be locked up in Marion now means something, thanks to the policy of Mayor Scherff.

Not only has Mayor Scherff stood for a better city with better morals, and respect for the executive and police departments of the city government, but he has counseled economy in all departments. Not a stinginess which would operate against the growth and prosperity of the city, not a retarding of needed improvements, but a curtailing of unnecessary expenditures which only burden the taxpayers. Mayor Scherff's administration has proved of the work of this official who has done much for Marion and her citizens. The voters will have opportunity at the coming election to express their approval of his efforts. Will they allow petty jealousies to blind them, and will they fail to approve of the work of this official who has given his best efforts for Marion and Marion people?

REPUBLICAN BOSSES.

The insincerity of the Republican leaders of Ohio on the reform of abuses and the corrupt use of money in elections is shown by the return of the discredited Boss Cox, of Cincinnati to power. He now seems to have complete control again of the Republican machine in Hamilton county, and according to a press dispatch, has even gone so far as to dictate the nomination of judges. Judge Ferris, who now occupies the Superior bench, states that he and his colleague, Judge Hosea, have been denied renominations because they did not permit Boss Cox to dictate the appointment of a trustee of the Cincinnati Southern railroad. Congressman Nicholas Longworth, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, is evidently content to be part of the Cox machine, and while his strenuous father-in-law is so much exercised over the necessity of defeating Tom Johnson for Mayor of Cleveland, who even his opponents agree is capable and honest, the influence of the son-in-law Longworth to bolster up the corrupt Cincinnati machine controlled by Boss Cox. How the Republican voters of Ohio can reconcile these anomalies and vote to sustain such evident inconsistencies is beyond belief. There must be enough honest Republicans in Cincinnati who will vote with the Democrats to again depose the corrupt boss, if their partisanship does not get the better of their duty to their city and state, and there certainly will be enough independent voters to reprove President Roosevelt for interfering in Cleveland.

A TOUCHING APPEAL.

The Taft family seems to be ready to swallow most any noxious dose if they can only elevate "Brother Bill" to the presidency. For in a late issue of the Cincinnati Times-Star owned by Taft's brother—we learn that: "Any erroneous reflections upon the character, standing, or reputation of any person, firm, or corporation, which may appear in the Times-Star, will be gladly corrected, if brought to the attention of the editor." That kindly feeling for the whole body of voters explains, no doubt, the recrudescence of Boss Cox. Nor is that "undesirable citizen" Senator Foraker left outside of the all-enveloping magnanimity of the Taft family for we also learn from this generous editor that: "Senator Foraker has his good points. It is more in sorrow than in anger that we note his present apparent willingness to take up the role of mere trouble-maker in that Grand Old Party to which he owes so much." How can Foraker resist this touching appeal to help out the Taft family and incidentally the C. O. P.?

REIGN OF OUTLAWRY

Confession of a Young Man Responsible for Many Burglaries.

Lima, O., Oct. 21.—A series of burglaries has followed the confession made by young Carl C. Fookes, who told the court how he burglarized the jewelry store of J. P. Hall & Co. The recent burglaries are the work of novices, the most daring being the attempted blowing of the safe in the offices of Bernstein & Co., junk dealers, who it is stated, often carry from $10,000 to $20,000 in cash. Burglars entered the place last night and damaged the combination lock on the safe, but failed to break open the door. Inside was some $9000 in coin and currency. The thieves then ransacked the office, tearing open all files and got for their trouble 20 cents in postage stamps and some small change.

It is believed the same hand looted the five freight cars on the Pennsylvania tracks the same night, securing a wagon load of merchandise. Thirteen pianos, guitars and violins were found along the trail shown by the wheels of a wagon. The seals on all five cars were broken. Two smaller attempts were also made Friday and Saturday nights on resident district groceries and meat stores.

It is believed the work was an outcome of Fookes' confession.

spective suites from a hill near the residence.

The procession massed before the gate of the palace of the Korean crown prince, and for half an hour the crowd shouted Hanzal while the massed bands rendered the hymn of the emperor of Japan. The festivities lasted almost the entire night, and the utmost good order prevailed.

The crown prince of Japan bade farewell to the emperor and the former emperor of Korea yesterday evening. The young crown prince of Korea has formed a great friendship with the crown prince of Japan.

It is difficult to gauge the real feeling of the Koreans in the matter of this visit to Seoul of the young man who ultimately is destined to become emperor of Japan. Unbiased observers of long residence in Seoul are of the opinion that this visit has produced an excellent impression. The tact and gentility of the Japanese crown prince has completely won over the emperor of Korea and his ministers, and the people are gratified at the respect shown Korean royalty.

PRESIDENT'S PARTY KILLED THREE BEARS

With His Guides and Trappings the Big Chief Reaches Stamboul—He is Well and Tanned and Declares He Had a Fine Time—All of the Party Agree That the President is no Tenderfoot.

Stamboul, La., Oct. 21.—We got three bears, six deer, one wild turkey, 12 squirrels, one duck, one possum, and one wild cat. We ate them all except the wild cat, and there were times when we almost felt as if we could eat it.

This was President Roosevelt's summing up of the results of his hunt on Bayou Tenness and Bear Lake. He arrived at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the residence of Leo Shields, where he will be a guest until his departure for Vicksburg, accompanied as he was by about a dozen of his hunting companions, all mounted and attired in hunting garb, the cavalcade presented a tableaux as picturesque as it was animated.

The president is slightly more bronzed than when he entered the wilderness from this point, 15 days ago, but notwithstanding this fact and the additional circumstance that his skin, as well as his clothes bear evidence of contact with the cane and other brush, he was never in better spirits in his life.

"Yes, we got three bears," he added, "all that we saw, and I think a pretty good record. I am perfectly satisfied."

"You might add," interjected one of the Mendenhall brothers, who has been the president's principal guide throughout the hunt, "that we hunted a country of vast extent and in which there were but five bears all told, and that of these, as you see, we got three."

Assenting to this amplification of his statement, the president entered upon an enthusiastic account of his hunt, which he had been supplied with while there.

"Was the possum good?" he was asked.

"Absolutely the best, dish we had, except the bear's liver," he responded with relish.

The president, when he said this stood on the lawn in front of Mr. Shields' house.

Around him were gathered the Shields and a number of guests whom he had invited to dine with the president.

In the distance were gathered the negro hunters, Holt Collier, Alex. Randolph, Brutus Jackson and numerous cooks, teamsters and messengers, while the horses stood in the yard and the dogs lay around licking their lacerated bodies, many of the animals being in bad condition on account of the long chase, and others as a result of contact with wild dogs, wild cats and other wild things. The president was the central figure of the group and he never appeared in happier frame.
